AHF Honors Andrew Shakman, Dexter Hancock and Scott Saklad

Louisville, KY. (June 6, 2013) – The Association for Healthcare Foodservice (AHF) is proud to announce that Andrew Shakman, co-founder of LeanPath, Inc., Dexter Hancock, retired director of nutritional services at DCH Health System and Scott Saklad, chairman of the board of Computrition are winners of the 2013 AHF Presidential Special Services Award. The AHF Award was presented at the AHF Annual Conference in New Orleans on June 6, 2013.

The AHF Presidential Special Services Award recipients are selected by the AHF President and may recognize up to three members for outstanding community service, strong media support for AHF members and/or committee contributions.

Chair of the AHF Education Committee, Hancock led the team to create the AHF Standards for the operation of Food and Nutrition Services in Acute Care Hospitals in the U.S. In addition to his committee role, he consults around the country.

Shakman, member of the AHF Industry Advisory Board and Education Committee, has helped spearhead a new member offering – the S.O. Lution Center that will allow the business partner community to provide information about their company and products that will assist operator members.

A member of the AHF Membership Committee, Finance Committee and Industry Advisory Board, Saklad is an extremely involved AHF member. Working with Shakman, he was able to contribute to the S.O. Lution Center and have a positive impact on a new member offering.

“This year’s award recipients show the incredible talent, dedication and foresight that makes AHF the organization it is,” said Beth Yesford, President. “It is a great honor to give them this award, and an even greater one to work with them throughout the year.”
